Health budgets may have increased, but so has the cost of providing today's health care.

Government guidelines require all public services to embrace new technologies. Furthermore the government has committed all areas of public service to providing online access to services and information by 2008.

This has led to increased pressure on general practice surgeries. To deal with the changing landscape of the health service, surgeries must become more businesslike in the way they operate. Like the majority of businesses, surgeries are now implementing website solutions or replacing their aging sites to meet the challenges facing the modern Health Service.

A typical website for a general practice surgery includes a great deal of information. Aside from the time it takes to collate and prepare this information, the cost of creating a typical surgery website can run to several thousand pounds. Now there's an alternative solution – SurgeryWeb.

SurgeryWeb has been created to deal with all of the needs of a modern general practice surgery. With a range of solutions starting at under £700, providing patient access to online services, surgery information and health related advice has never been more affordable.

What makes SurgeryWeb different to your average website solution is the extensive range of specialist content packs, created in consultation with practicing GPs. Combine that with EMIS integration, professional design, cutting edge content management technology and a rapid approach to implementation, we ensure that your site delivers real benefits to patients from day one.

Benefits for Your Surgery

Improve Patient Services: provide up-to-date information on the range of clinics and services you offer, ensuring your patients have the very latest information available at all times.

EMIS Integration: integrate with the UK's leading Patient Management System and provide your patients with easy to use access to online services such as appointment booking.

Reduce Administration: by providing answers to common questions as well as access to forms, registration services and repeat prescriptions, your admin and reception staff will have more time to focus on patient care.

Professional Image: while the majority of patients will come from the surgery catchment area, there is still an element of competition, especially in places like university towns. A professionally designed website ensures you are ready to meet the needs of today's internet savvy generation.

A SurgeryWeb solution delivers highly efficient business practices and the key features of the solution are highlighted overleaf. Alternatively visit our website to see a SurgeryWeb solution in action.

"We are very pleased with the new website and the service there was initially some work to be done in tailoring the site to our particular surgery needs, but support was given throughout.

We like the layout and the ease of use, and particularly like the integration with EMIS that offers improved service and communication with our patients."
